Stumps Ohio With Taft's Blessing; Makes Seven Whistle Stops

By Kenneth A. Ungerman
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

ABOARD THE EISENHOWER SPECIAL, Sept. 23 — (INS) — Gen. Eisenhower, with his ex-ri-val Sen. Taft's blessing, stumps Ohio today and awaits his running mate's explanation of the controversial expense fund.

The GOP Presidential candidate makes seven whistle stops in the state that Sen. Taft says will "give him the biggest majority" of all Republican states in the November election.

Following appearances in Middletown, Dayton, Springfield, Columbus, Delaware, Galion and Wellington, Ike will make a major address at Cleveland.

The General rolled into Sen. Taft's home state last night and received a roaring welcome from some 100,000 persons.

Ike made a major foreign policy speech at the Cincinnati Music Hall and was introduced on the platform by his once bitter rival for the Republican Presidential nomination.

The General ripped into the Administration's foreign policy, calling it a program "of bits and pieces — an endless game of makeshift and make-believe."

He said there had been points of difference between Sen. Taft and him on some governmental policies. But he added that there were two major points that they were in complete agreement:

"First, the requirement for rigid economy in government and living within our means.

"Secondly, the immediate need for a complete change in the position."

Building Being Moved To Falls Church Grounds

"Temporary" Fallsington School To Add To The Methodist Facilities

FALLSINGTON, Sept. 23 — House movers are moving the "temporary" Fallsington school, from where it had stood for 21 years alongside the main building of Fallsington Elementary School, across the street and around to the rear of the Fallsington Methodist Church which purchased the building.

The moving started several days ago. Now the house movers have the two-classroom building sitting on a frame of one-foot square timber beams which sits on 24 rubber tired wheels. Heavy-duty winch trucks have already turned the building so that its length points down the street toward the church. The movers are now waiting for the electric and telephone companies to elevate wires so that the building can be moved out into the street under the wires.

The building which was brought to the school grounds in 1931 was used as "temporary" classrooms until the decision was made to construct an addition to the new school building. Some of the children who would normally have gone to the temporary structure are now attending school at Fairless Hills and some are attending at the main building of the Fallsington school.

Criticize Authority In Morrisville For Its Sewer Program

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 23 — Cost of the proposed $3,350,000 sewer system for Morrisville is the main reason for the opposition of the Morrisville residents, Councilman Robert O. Warwick explained to the members of borough council which met last night in Municipal Hall.

Councilman Neal Nolan, who has opposed the high cost of the projected sewer program demanded of Willard S. Curtin, attorney for the authority, "Do you mean to tell me that the authority is not even going to consider the 400 signatures on the petition against the cost of the sewer program?"

Curtin presented a proposal for an ordinance under which the council would turn over to the authority a seven-acre tract owned by the borough on Delaware avenue, for use as the site for the proposed sewage disposal plant. Curtin, in turning over the proposal to the councilmen, explained that he had nothing to do with the cost of the sewer project, he was only carrying out the orders of the authority. The proposal was turned over to the ordinance committee for study.

Editorial

STEALING BY WHOLESALE

As this column has frequently made clear, we do not agree with the concept that "corruption" is the big over-riding issue of this campaign.

Without in any way condoning the pilfering and the selling of favors which has reached new highs during the Truman regime, we nevertheless consider this a minor matter by comparison with such questions as to whether our government shall be allowed to follow its present drift into a military dictatorship disguised as a "Welfare State", or whether our play-boy diplomatic corps shall be permitted to suck us into a devastating Third World War, or whether the American people shall be forever bankrupted by a continuance of New Deal inflation.

We consider the sticky-fingered manifestations so notorious at Washington as little more than symptoms of greater diseases.

Abuse of public trust has always been a fellow traveller with inflation such as is now under way as our national fiscal policy. As more than one economist has concluded, inflation is an emotional state of mind just as much as a financial spiral.

Run back through the historic case-histories of inflation—that of the later Caesars in Rome, of the first two years of the French Republic, or of either Germany or France in the years following the First World War. Note how lowdown in private lives accompanied betrayal of public confidence in high office.

Inflation is and continues to be the worst single danger facing this country.

It is here. Its attack is under way. All other menaces are off in the distance, but inflation has done much of its dirty work already.

Within the past few days a report has been released by the U. S. Department of Commerce which ought to strike terror to the hearts of every American, and ought to become the principal topic of most public utterances hereafter.

It is a tabulation of public and private debt in this country, showing that it has reached an all-time high of $519,000,000,000 — half a trillion dollars.

Be it said at once that the figures, starting as they are, represent the most rosy-hued picture possible of the situation. They have been shaved and revised downward at every point.

Building Being Moved To Falls Church Grounds

"Temporary" Fallsington School To Add To The Methodist Facilities

FALLSINGTON, Sept. 23 — House movers are moving the "temporary" Fallsington school, from where it had stood for 21 years alongside the main building of Fallsington Elementary School, across the street and around to the rear of the Fallsington Methodist Church which purchased the building.

The moving started several days ago. Now the house movers have the two-classroom building sitting on a frame of one-foot square timber beams which sit on 24 rubber tired wheels. Heavy-duty winch trucks have already turned the building so that its length points down the street toward the church.

The movers are now waiting for the electric and telephone companies to elevate wires so that the building can be moved out into the street under the wires.

The building which was brought to the school grounds in 1931 was used as "temporary" classrooms up until the decision was made to construct an addition to the new school building. Some of the children who would normally have gone to the temporary structure are now attending school at Fairless Hills and some are attending at the main building of the Fallsington school.

Yardley May Divide Its Classrooms in Half

YARDLEY, Sept. 23 — The Yardley school board is considering dividing each elementary classroom in two and is consulting architects and engineers on the possibility of the project. It was announced at a meeting last night. Medill Bair, regional superintendent of Pennsylvania School District, who made the announcement, said 270 children are now attending classes in nine rooms.

This year there are some 470 pupils registered for schools from Yardley district, as compared with 404 last year.

Food Editor to Appear Before Morrisville Club

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 23 — Harry Botsford, former industrial public relations man turned author, now food editor of a monthly publication, will be the speaker at the meeting of Morrisville Rotary Club at Pennsbury Inn Thursday evening.

Mr. Botsford, whose articles in national magazines have made America more conscious of the art of outdoor cookery, will discuss the subject, "Who's Interested in Food?"

Prior to his retirement from industry to take up his writing career, Mr. Botsford was with the American Petroleum Institute, and served as a senior member of the firm Hill and Knowlton, public relations representatives for several large companies and for the American Iron and Steel Institute. He is a resident of New York, N. Y.

Criticize Authority In Morrisville For Its Sewer Program

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 23 — Cost of the proposed $3,350,000 sewer system for Morrisville is the main reason for the opposition of the Morrisville residents, Councilman Robert O. Warwick explained to the members of borough council which met last night in Municipal Hall.

Councilman Neal Nolan, who has opposed the high cost of the projected sewer program demanded of Willard S. Curtin, attorney for the authority, "Do you mean to tell me that the authority is not even going to consider the 400 signatures on the petition against the cost of the sewer program?"

Curtin presented a proposal for an ordinance under which the council would turn over to the authority a seven-acre tract owned by the borough on Delaware avenue, for use as the site for the proposed sewage disposal plant.

The charter was presented to the Rev. E. C. Hyde in the presence of the congregation by Lloyd Bucher, Pennell, chairman of Cubbing for Bucks County Council, Boy Scouts of America. He was assisted by Solomon Miller, Middletown township, chairman of Delaware Valley district, of which Hulmeville is part.

The actual presentation was preceded by very appropriate remarks by Mr. Bucher.

Others taking part were: Dominico Laino, Pennell, church warden, and institutional representative for scouting; Ross Buckman, chairman of park committee; John Hershey, cubmaster; Mrs. Harry Beck, den mother; Mrs. Horace Tomlinson, assistant den mother; and den chiefs, Herman Schweiker and Francis Riley.

Grace Church was presented with a charter to sponsor Troop 22, Boy Scouts of America on Friday evening at a party in Pennell Fire Co. station. This party was one of the best attended of its kind, with officials present from other districts and councils. The Hulmeville Girl Scouts served refreshments. Mrs. Herman Pettigrew directing them.

This nearly completes the scouting family for Grace Church because the Brownies and the Girl Scouts also meet there.

Grace Church is planning to commence a fund raising campaign, to build a larger parish house to better accommodate its ever increasing number of youth groups.

STEALING BY WHOLESALE

As this column has frequently made clear, we do not agree with the concept that "corruption" is the big over-riding issue of this campaign.

Without in any way condoning the pilfering and the selling of favors which has reached new highs during the Truman regime, we nevertheless consider this a minor matter by comparison with such questions as to whether our government shall be allowed to follow its present drift into a military dictatorship disguised as a "Welfare State", or whether our play-boy diplomatic corps shall be permitted to suck us into a devastating Third World War, or whether the American people shall be forever bankrupted by a continuance of New Deal inflation.

We consider the sticky-fingered manifestations so notorious at Washington as little more than symptoms of greater diseases.

Abuse of public trust has always been a fellow traveler with inflation such as is now under way as our national fiscal policy. As more than one economist has concluded, inflation is an emotional state of mind just as much as a financial spiral.

Run back through the historic case-histories of inflation—that of the later Caesars in Rome, of the first two years of the French Republic, or of either Germany or France in the years following the First World War. Note how lewdness in private lives accompanied betrayal of public confidence in high office.

Inflation is and continues to be the worst single danger facing this country.

It is here. Its attack is under way. All other menaces are off in the distance, but inflation has done much of its dirty work already.

Within the past few days a report has been released by the U. S. Department of Commerce which ought to strike terror to the hearts of every American, and ought to become the principal topic of most public utterances hereafter.

It is a tabulation of public and private debt in this country, showing that it has reached an all-time high of $519,000,000,000 — half a trillion dollars.

Be it said at once that the figures, starting as they are, represent the most rosy-hued picture possible of the situation. They have been shaved and revised downward at every point.

Rev. Letourneur Visits Holy Ghost College

Cornwells Heights Included in Tour of Congregation's Houses

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 23 — Holy Ghost College, here, on Saturday was host to the Very Rev. John Letourneur, C.S.Sp., upon his conclusion of the tour of the Congregation's houses in Canada. As a courtesy call, he will also visit Connecticut and Washington, D. C., while in the United States.

The Holy Ghost Fathers train students for the priesthood in Canada, as well as in the United States. Besides the local house of formation other houses are located in Connecticut and Michigan, while the main house for information and coordination is in Washington, D. C. from whence come directives and important decisions.

The Very Rev. John Letourneur, C.S.Sp., is attached to the motherhouse, in Paris, France, in the capacity of general treasurer of the entire Holy Ghost congregation, administering to the needs of the missions, and other temporal necessities of the Order, in dealings with governments, shipping companies, etc. His visit to Canada was occasioned by a rule of the Order, requiring a visit to each house and mission in every country, at least once every five years, by a member attached to the Motherhouse. Such visitations include the observance of the Rule, making suggestions for material improvements, and promoting the general good and unity of the entire Order. Last year, the houses in the United States and Puerto Rico were visited by the Very Rev. Joseph T. Quinn, C.S.Sp., one-time director and professor at the Cornwells College, and now a member of the General Council in Paris.

Falls Directors To Withdraw Appeal On Steel Co. Assessment

Withdrawal, However, Contingent Upon Withdrawal By Firm of Its Appeal

Falls township school board at its meeting last night voted to withdraw its appeal of the Fairless Works assessment. The appeal is pending before the Board of Assessment and Revision at Doylestown.

The Assessment and Revision school board granted the Falls township school board beyond Sept. 17, the date at which the public hearing on the appeal was held, to present evidence which would support their claim that the present assessment of the steel company is too low.

The withdrawal of the appeal by the school board is contingent upon the withdrawal by U. S. Steel of their appeal of the present assessment. The steel company based its appeal on five minor points of law which in the main had to do with the levying of assessments on special purpose buildings which according to the steel company had no value until they were put to their special use.

At the hearing of the appeal by the school board was that such a system could not conceivably apply to an assessment of a plant so large and complex as the steel company, and they requested the Board of Assessment and Revision to provide qualified technical assistance to the assessors so that an assessed valuation of the plant would be "fair" to all concerned.

The resolution by the school board to withdraw the appeal came, according to T. Sidney Cadwallader, attorney for the school board, because the school board felt that the one week's time given by the Board of Assessment and Revision was not sufficient in which to amass sufficient information to do justice to their claim.

Cadwallader said that the school board reiterated its request, however, that the county assessors and county commissioners make provision far enough in advance so that when assessment time rolls around next year the officials will have the assistance of expert appraisers, and will have sufficient time in which to make a "satisfactory" appraisal of the plant.

According to Cadwallader every effort is being made to determine Continued on Page Six

Lions to Raise Funds As They Man the Pumps

FALLSINGTON, Sept. 23 — Members of Falls Township Lions Club will be manning the pumps of Charles Misawic's gasoline station at Lincoln Point, near here, on Sunday. Misawic has promised the Lions all of the profits of the station for that day in order to build a fund for the club which was organized last May and now totals almost 50 members.

The profits which Misawic will turn over to the Lions will provide them with a fund to finance some of the many projects which the young organization plans to undertake. One of the main projects for which the fund will be used is a recreational program according to James P. Doherty, Club member.

Chairman of the project is John I. Boyce. Julian Gancarz is co-chairman.

THE F-101

The theory of strategic bombing as embraced by the U. S. Air Force today envisions bombers rising from bases in this country and flying Great Circle routes to their objectives. As they near enemy territory they would be joined by swarms of escorting fighters. The fighters might or might not be able to stick with the bombers if the objective was well inside enemy territory. This assumes there are fighter bases in friendly territory.

Let's assume the worst happened and all forward bases were overrun—where would the fighter escort come from? Fighters can be fueled aloft—it's being done regularly. But the timing must be marvelously precise. The problem, as Air Force planners have known for years, involves long range escorts.

This is probably the significance of the award of a contract for the F-101, a new twin jet fighter designed specifically for long range escort duties, to the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., which is presently making jet fighters for the Navy. Performance details are secret. However, it stands to reason that the F-101 will have to be a "big" plane, by fighter standards, to carry the extra fuel, electronics gear, and ordnance for its protector role.

In a way this is an admission that the Air Force has done a flip flop in its claims for its big bombers. Back in 1949 the airman claimed full self-sufficiency for their B-36 bomber. They said it was immune to fighter attack and was to make aircraft carriers obsolete forever. But the Korean war has proven the need for both aircraft carriers and high flying bombers.

Few men become millionaires before they are 80 years old, according to a financial authority. If then.

Apparently those thousands of workers on strike at a plane plant have not been convinced they never had it so good.

Shortage of school teachers is less acute, so this may be another problem that is being solved by education.

Harry Bridges has lost another court fight, or something. But it seems there ought to be swifter justice for the likes of him.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. Gov. Adlai Stevenson, Democratic nominee for the Presidency, has confessed to a strange belief regarding the inviolable principle of respect for, and obedience to, American laws.

For a lawyer, his confession has the novelty of being comparable to the views of a convicted bank robber who is certain that statutes prohibiting the robbing of banks are in restraint of trade.

The Governor wants to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Law because of its "political symbolism." In other words, it's not a question of whether a law is just or unjust—but if it is politically expedient.

To carry the Governor's views to their ultimate conclusion, any law restraining graft and thievery among Democratic employees of the present administration should be erased from the statute books because the political symbolism is unmistakable.

There seems to be some question as to when the Governor arrived at his novel views regarding American laws, in general, and the Taft-Hartley Law in particular. Some critics place his conversion at the moment he became a captive of the left-wing Americans for Democratic Action and the CIO. This occurred prior to his nomination, but not too long before.

On March 30, 1952, in response to a question from Larry Spivak on the radio program, "Meet the Press," Stevenson said:

"I think the Taft-Hartley Law needs revision, needs substantial amendment. I don't think it should be repealed."

On September 15 the Governor said, in response to a reporter's question:

"What we need is a new act and I am more interested in results than the methods themselves. The Act could be changed by modification, but I believe its political symbolism makes repeal advisable."

Recently in Detroit, under the watchful eye of labor leader Walter Reuther and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the Governor was more blunt. He said:

"The Taft-Hartley Labor Law should be repealed."

Fundamentally, the political symbolism of the Taft-Hartley Law is that labor leaders do not like it. Since labor leaders have convinced the Governor that they control large blocs of votes, it is obvious to him now that the law is unjust—politically, not legally.

We also have on the statute books the Smith Act, making it unlawful for Communists to plot the overthrow of the U. S. Government by force and violence. ADA, which is furnishing Stevenson's brain trust, objects to this law on the ostensible grounds that no political organization should be legally harassed. Since the Communist Party is the only self-styled political party involved, ADA's defense is unmistakably designed to help the Communists.

It is only fair to seek from the Governor his views regarding the Smith Act, since the Communists object to the law on the basis of its political symbolism.

If the Governor would replace the Smith Act, as he would the Taft-Hartley Act, with a new law, it is advisable to estimate the nature of the new legislation. Either Communists are to be permitted to plot the destruction of the American Government or they are to be forbidden to do so, and jailed as a consequence when they attempt it. A law allowing Communists this freedom is the only alternative to the Smith Act. There is no halfway destruction of our security. Either we have it or we don't. Either we have an American form of government or a Soviet form of government—since that is the only political system threatening our way of life at present.

It cannot be denied that the Smith Act has political symbolism. The Communists and their left wing assistants polled almost 4,000,000 votes in 1948. Their leader then was Henry Wallace, currently a New York State chicken farmer who recently asked to be reclassified as an American citizen by pointing out the method in which the Reds made of him a class A sucker.

The Governor, of course, hasn't the gall now to label the Smith Anti-Communist Act unwise because of its political symbolism. But the trend of his thinking is unmistakable. A good law, in his view, is a law pleasing to the politically powerful. Should he ascend to the Presidency this attitude would hang like a black shadow over the American system of jurisprudence.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Captives And Strategy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. For a while the friends of Mr. Stevenson were delighted with the failure of General Eisenhower and Senator Robert Taft to get together and agree on Mr. Taft's part in the campaign. They rejoiced in the stories from the Stevenson supporting columnists that Senator Taft was insisting upon General Eisenhower giving him, "in writing," commitments not only as to policies but as to major Administration appointments.

No one not feeble-minded could think for a moment that Senator Taft would make so insulting a proposal or that General Eisenhower would do anything except reject it if he did. Nevertheless, it was such an entrancing prospect from their angle that the Stevenson propagandists spread this report all over the country and were still spreading it at the time of the Eisenhower-Taft breakfast from which the latter emerged with unconditional pledges of full support. It then developed that no commitments in writing or otherwise had been asked or given; that while the two men differed in detail on a number of things, there was no fundamental differences between them, nothing to prevent Senator Taft from being wholehearted in his advocacy. There was on neither side any compromise of principle.

This, naturally, was disappointing to the Stevenson management, which for weeks had been trying to drive a wedge between General "Ike" and Senator Taft. When that effort failed Governor Stevenson stopped personally talking about the "two-headed elephant" and, in his merry way, announced that Senator Taft had now taken over the Republican campaign and the General was no longer in charge. Of course, Governor Stevenson knows this is not true and it seems rather cheap for him to say that it is. However, it being now impossible further to dwell on the division in the Republican party, perhaps there is nothing else for him to say except to denounce its unity. Or, perhaps, this picturing of the General's "surrender" and Senator Taft's "assumption of command" is just another example of the irresistible wit and humor with which the "Little Joker" interlards all his speeches and press conference utterances.

At any rate, this change of Stevenson strategy forced by the Eisenhower-Taft accord apparently is not displeasing to the Eisenhower managers. They say—and with truth—that despite the Stevenson statements and the outpourings of the Stevenson columnists, few will believe that "Ike" "paid a price" for the Taft support inconsistent with his self-respect or compromising his basic beliefs. In brief, the accord with Taft will lose "Ike" no support (except possibly that of the eccentric Senator Morse) and will gain him many thousands of Taft supporters all over the country who were certainly "dragging their feet."

Certainly no such "price" was paid by "Ike" for his accord with Taft as was paid by Governor Stevenson in his bid for the labor-boss support. In his Labor Day speech he heroically told the CIO leaders that "I am not your captive." Then, by a miraculous coincidence, he found that what he had to say was exactly 100 per cent what the cheering CIO bosses wanted him to say—to wit, that he is flatly for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, though previously he had expressed himself for the law with modifications, which happens exactly to describe not only General Eisenhower's position but also that of Senator Taft himself. It does not seem too much to describe the Governor's declarations on this occasion as an unusually subtle exhibition of "double talk." There are strong reasons to believe that American people would like once more to see a President wholly free of obligations to labor bosses who time and again have shown their complete willingness, at great cost to all the people, to strangle the national economy in order to get their way, regardless of war or national crisis.

Thus the prospects are that despite "Ike's" determination not to deal in personalities, Governor Stevenson will not be permitted to stay on the offensive all the time nor dodge embarrassing questions in the clever way he has in recent press conferences. At the moment he is minimizing the opposition to him in the South.

THE F-101

The theory of strategic bombing as embraced by the U. S. Air Force today envisions bombers rising from bases in this country and flying Great Circle routes to their objectives. As they near enemy territory they would be joined by swarms of escorting fighters. The fighters might or might not be able to stick with the bombers if the objective was well inside enemy territory. This assumes there are fighter bases in friendly territory.

Let's assume the worst happened and all forward bases were overrun—where would the fighter escort come from? Fighters can be fueled aloft—it's being done regularly. But the timing must be marvelously precise. The problem, as Air Force planners have known for years, involves long range escorts.

This is probably the significance of the award of a contract for the F-101, a new twin jet fighter designed specifically for long range escort duties, to the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., which is presently making jet fighters for the Navy. Performance details are secret. However, it stands to reason that the F-101 will have to be a "big" plane, by fighter standards, to carry the extra fuel, electronics gear, and ordnance for its protector role.

In a way this is an admission that the Air Force has done a flip flop in its claims for its big bombers. Back in 1949 the airmen claimed full self-sufficiency for their B-36 bomber. They said it was immune to fighter attack and was to make aircraft carriers obsolete forever. But the Korean war has proven the need for both aircraft carriers and high flying bombers.

Few men become millionaires before they are 80 years old, according to a financial authority.
If then.

Apparently those thousands of workers on strike at a plane plant have not been convinced they never had it so good.

Shortage of school teachers is less acute, so this may be another problem that is being solved by education.

Harry Bridges has lost another court fight, or something.
But it seems there ought to be swifter justice for the likes of him.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1952,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Gov. Adlai Stevenson, Democratic nominee for the Presidency, has confessed to a strange belief regarding the inviolable principle of respect for, and obedience to, American laws.

For a lawyer, his confession has the novelty of being comparable to the views of a convicted bank robber who is certain that statutes prohibiting the robbing of banks are in restraint of trade.

The Governor wants to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Law because of its "political symbolism." In other words, it's not a question of whether a law is just or unjust—but if it is politically expedient.

To carry the Governor's views to their ultimate conclusion, any law restraining graft and thievery among Democratic employees of the present administration should be erased from the statute books because the political symbolism is unmistakable.

There seems to be some question as to when the Governor arrived at his novel views regarding American laws, in general, and the Taft-Hartley Law in particular. Some critics place his conversion at the moment he became a captive of the left-wing Americans for Democratic Action and the CIO. This occurred prior to his nomination, but not too long before.

On March 30, 1952, in response to a question from Larry Spivak on the radio program, "Meet the Press," Stevenson said:

"I think the Taft-Hartley Law needs revision, needs substantial amendment. I don't think it should be repealed."

On September 15 the Governor said, in response to a reporter's question:

"What we need is a new act and I am more interested in results than the methods themselves. The Act could be changed by modification, but I believe its political symbolism makes repeal advisable."

Recently in Detroit, under the watchful eye of labor leader Walter Reuther and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the Governor was more blunt. He said:

"The Taft-Hartley Labor Law should be repealed."

Fundamentally, the political symbolism of the Taft-Hartley Law is that labor leaders do not like it. Since labor leaders have convinced the Governor that they control large blocs of votes, it is obvious to him now that the law is unjust—politically, not legally.

We also have on the statute books the Smith Act, making it unlawful for Communists to plot the overthrow of the U. S. Government by force and violence. ADA, which is furnishing Stevenson's brain trust, objects to this law on the ostensible grounds that no political organization should be legally harassed. Since the Communist Party is the only self-styled political party involved, ADA's defense is unmistakably designed to help the Communists.

It is only fair to seek from the Governor his views regarding the Smith Act, since the Communists object to the law on the basis of its political symbolism.

If the Governor would replace the Smith Act, as he would the Taft-Hartley Act, with a new law, it is advisable to estimate the nature of the new legislation. Either Communists are to be permitted to plot the destruction of the American Government or they are to be forbidden to do so, and jailed as a consequence when they attempt it. A law allowing Communists this freedom is the only alternative to the Smith Act. There is no half-way destruction of our security. Either we have it or we don't. Either we have an American form of government or a Soviet form of government—since that is the only political system threatening our way of life at present.

It cannot be denied that the Smith Act has political symbolism. The Communists and their left wing assistants polled almost 4,000,000 votes in 1948. Their leader then was Henry Wallace, currently a New York State chicken farmer who recently asked to be reclassified as an American citizen by pointing out the method in which the Reds made of him a class A sucker.

The Governor, of course, hasn't the gall now to label the Smith Anti-Communist Act unwise because of its political symbolism. But the trend of his thinking is unmistakable. A good law, in his view, is a law pleasing to the politically powerful. Should he ascend to the Presidency this attitude would hang like a black shadow over the American system of jurisprudence.

This, naturally, was disappointing to the Stevenson management, which for weeks had been trying to drive a wedge between General "Ike" and Senator Taft. When that effort failed Governor Stevenson stopped personally talking about the "two-headed elephant" and, in his merry way, announced that

By FRANK R. KENT

Captives And Strategy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—For a while the friends of Mr. Stevenson were delighted with the failure of General Eisenhower and Senator Robert Taft to get together and agree on Mr. Taft's part in the campaign. They rejoiced in the stories from the Stevenson supporting columnists that Senator Taft was insisting upon General Eisenhower giving him, "in writing," commitments not only as to policies but as to major Administration appointments.

No one too feeble-minded could think for a moment that Senator Taft would make so insulting a proposal or that General Eisenhower would do anything except reject it if he did. Nevertheless, it was such an entrancing prospect from their angle that the Stevenson propagandists spread this report all over the country and were still spreading it at the time of the Eisenhower-Taft breakfast from which the latter emerged with unconditional pledges of full support. It then developed that no commitments in writing or otherwise had been asked or given; that while the two men differed in detail, on a number of things, there was no fundamental differences between them, nothing to prevent Senator Taft from being whole-hearted in his advocacy. There was on neither side any compromise of principle.

Certainly no such "price" was paid by "Ike" for his accord with Taft as was paid by Governor Stevenson in his bid for the labor-boss support. In his Labor Day speech he heroically told the CIO leaders that "I am not your captive." Then, by a miraculous coincidence, he found that what he had to say was exactly 100 per cent what the cheering CIO bosses wanted him to say—to wit, that he is flatly for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, though previously he had expressed himself for the law with modifications, which happens exactly to describe not only General Eisenhower's position but also that of Senator Taft himself. It does not seem too much to describe the Governor's declarations on this occasion as an unusually subtle exhibition of "double talk." There are strong reasons to believe that American people would like once more to see a President wholly free of obligations to labor bosses who time and again have shown their complete willingness, at great cost to all the people, to strangle the national economy in order to get their way, regardless of war or national crisis.

Senator Taft had now taken over the Republican campaign and the General was no longer in charge. Of course, Governor Stevenson knows this is not true and it seems rather cheap for him to say that it is. However, it being now impossible further to dwell on the division in the Republican party, perhaps there is nothing else for him to say except to denounce its unity. Or, perhaps, this picturing of the General's "surrender" and Senator Taft's "assumption of command" is just another example of the irresistible wit and humor with which the "Little Joker" interlards all his speeches and press conference utterances.

At any rate, this change of Stevenson strategy forced by the Eisenhower-Taft accord apparently is not displeasing to the Eisenhower managers. They say—and with truth—that despite the Stevenson statements and the outpourings of the Stevenson columnists, few will believe that "Ike" "paid a price" for the Taft support inconsistent with his self-respect or compromising his basic beliefs. In brief, the accord with Taft will lose "Ike" no support (except possibly that of the eccentric Senator Morse) and will gain him many thousands of Taft supporters all over the country who were certainly "dragging their feet."

Thus the prospects are that despite "Ike's" determination not to deal in personalities, Governor Stevenson will not be permitted to stay on the offensive all the time nor dodge embarrassing questions in the clever way he has in recent press conferences. At the moment he is minimizing the opposition to him in the South.

and man items have been omitted which are just as much part of the public debt as those included.

The Federal debt has been static for the past year, the report shows, whereas private debt and the state and local government's debt have both risen sharply.

The upward trend is alarming, especially when we stop to figure how immensely greater this acknowledged mountain of debt is than any conceivable listing of American assets.

The last time there was any competent list of the assets of the American people, by honest, gold-standard dollars, the figure which the economists arrived at was $300,000,000,000.

In other words, the dollar-debt, according to the Federal bureau which made the above-mentioned report, is nearly seventy per cent over the total of the assets which have been mortgaged.

But as noted, the reported debt is ridiculously short of the real total. The national debt, for example, is listed at $219 billion, disregarding all debts to Federal agencies, which certainly ought to be included, and ignoring the total of Federal Reserve currency in circulation as well—just read what the writing says on a dollar bill if you doubt that these are promissory notes!

But the Federal government has fantastically big obligations in addition, some of which are going to force the present debt much higher. There are literally uncountable billions—between sixty and a hundred—of dollars in appropriations which have been made by Congress but not yet expended. Then there are equally past obligations—social security among them—which are largely unfunded, and which, for the purpose of estimating the total debt, certainly ought to be considered.

It is hypocrisy for the New Deal officials and candidates to pretend that future generations will be either able or willing to pay off this incredible debt, if it keeps on growing.

The process is blatant, conspicuous inflation—just as much a part and parcel of inflation as the earlier schemes of issuing fiat money or printing bonds without assets back of them.

More insidious than any disease, more deadly than any war, inflation is at the throat of the American people. It is stealing their passions by wholesale.

The Democrats, who unleashed this monster, have demonstrated their utter futility at curbing it.

The cure can come only from a change in the political management of our national government.

and man items have been omitted which are just as much part of the public debt as those included.

The Federal debt has been static for the past year, the report shows, whereas private debt and the state and local government's debt have both risen sharply.

The upward trend is alarming, especially when we stop to figure how immensely greater this acknowledged mountain of debt is than any conceivable listing of American assets.

The last time there was any competent list of the assets of the American people, by honest, gold-standard dollars, the figure which the economists arrived at was $300,000,000,000. In other words, the dollar-debt, according to the Federal bureau which made the above-mentioned report, is nearly seventy per cent over the total of the assets which have been mortgaged.

But as noted, the reported debt is ridiculously short of the real total. The national debt, for example, is listed at $219 billion, disregarding all debts to Federal agencies, which certainly ought to be included, and ignoring the total of Federal Reserve currency in circulation as well—just read what the writing says on a dollar bill if you doubt that these are promissory notes!

But the Federal government has fantastically big obligations in addition, some of which are going to force the present debt much higher. There are literally uncountable billions—between sixty and a hundred—of dollars in appropriations which have been made by Congress but not yet expended. Then there are equally past obligations—social security among them—which are largely unfinanced, and which, for the purpose of estimating the total debt, certainly ought to be considered.

It is hypocrisy for the New Deal officials and candidates to pretend that future generations will be either able or willing to pay off this incredible debt, if it keeps on growing.

The process is blatant, conspicuous inflation—just as much a part and parcel of inflation as the earlier schemes of issuing fiat money or printing bonds without assets back of them.

More insidious than any disease, more deadly than any war, inflation is at the throat of the American people. It is stealing their passions by wholesale.

The Democrats, who unleashed this monster, have demonstrated their utter futility at curbing it.

The cure can come only from a change in the political management of our national government.

NEWS OF SCHOOLS IN AREA...

All public, private and parochial schools in the Bristol area are invited to send news items for publication in this column which appears frequently.

Delhaas High School

For the second year Delhaas high school is offering a journalism course as an elective to senior high students. This year, the class, under the supervision of J. E. Sparks, the instructor, is participating in two practical activities.

One of the projects for the year will be the maintenance of a daily news bulletin board, known as the "Delhaas Daily Post," in the school library.

The board has been divided into three main divisions—local, national and international news. Each member of the class, including the teacher, will assume responsibility for a period of time for keeping the news up to date on a daily basis.

A second activity for the class will be the monthly publication of a news sheet for the members of the Bristol Township Teachers Association.

Bristol Township

The first issue of the "BTCA Courier," news bulletin for members of the Bristol Township Teachers Association, makes its appearance this week.

The "BTCA Courier," a monthly news bulletin that will contain local, state and national information for teachers, is being prepared for the teachers of Bristol township and of Delhaas high school.

Members of J. E. Sparks' journalism class will collect and write the material. These students include Audrey Carango, Rose Cauter, Joyce Curry, "Betty" Jane Roberts and Michael Wasserman.

The idea for the publication originated with Miss Rosemarie Miles, Delhaas home economics teacher, who is president of the local teachers association.

Contents of the first issue include such items as a summary of Miss Miles' trip to the Penn Hall Workshop in August, announcement of the first dinner meeting to be held on October 1, a list of all of the BTCA teachers by schools, a calendar of future activities and a column called "Item-ettes," one-sentence comments on various teachers and their activities.

Committee Chairmen Are Named for St. Thomas Guild

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 23 — The committee chairmen for St. Thomas' Guild of Holy Trinity R. C. Church, have been named for the year by the president, Mrs. Frank H. Purdy.

The list includes: Activities, Mrs. William Meloney; hospitality, Mrs. John W. Leonard; membership, Mrs. Edward J. Mannix; program, Mrs. Leonard F. Ferry; publicity, Mrs. William I. Murphy; welfare, Mrs. John McDonald; merchandise, Mrs. Michael Sayko Jr. and cards, Mrs. Edward Melvaine.

Officers include Miss Evelyn Dietrich, vice president; Mrs. Alfred Champagne, treasurer; Mrs. William McGowan, recording secretary and Mrs. Michael Kelly, corresponding secretary.

Oppose Appointment of Those in Liquor Business

NEWTOWN, Sept. 23 — The Newtown Council of Churches and Meetings at a meeting held Thursday evening in the Study of the Presbyterian Church voted to go on record as opposing the appointment of any person connected with the liquor business as a member of the board of directors of Neshaminy Valley Youth Center.

The meeting was conducted by the Rev. J. Laurence Carr, president of the council.

Mrs. Norman Kratz, a member of the committee on Religious education, reported Released Time classes will start Oct. 28 for fifth, sixth and seventh grades of Council Rock schools. The Teachers Training school, with Miss Irene Balliet, as teacher, will have its first session in Wesley Hall of the Methodist Church, Oct. 22nd, and the next six weeks closing the evening before Thanksgiving day.

George Haynes, of the committee on Religious Meetings, reported the Thanksgiving Community Service, will be held in the Methodist Church, Nov. 26th at eight p. m.

He reported the Vesper services conducted at the various churches during the month of July, will be discontinued because of very poor attendance. However, other joint services will take their place, spaced throughout the year. One will be held the Sunday closest to July 4th in 1953, which will be a community affair, one is tentative planned during Lent, and others may be scheduled.

Rev. John E. Mertz, D.D., was appointed to take the place of Rev. Harold J. Schut, committee for Youth Council, the first meeting to be Oct. 19th, the church to be announced later.

TIME IS HERE TO MAKE THE SCHOOL DRESSES FOR FALL

By Frances Vannoy
Home Economics
Extension Representative

Though school days are already here, you still have time to make one or more cotton dresses for your little girl.

Make an attractive, well-fitting, and durable dress. Some cotton dresses that a little girl must grow into are uncomfortable and often unattractive.

If you're going to make two or three new dresses, choose a becoming pattern. Cut all the dresses at once. It doesn't take any more time but you'll need plenty of pins. Although you use the same pattern, the dresses won't look alike because material and trimmings are different.

First make all the belts, collars, and pockets. Put the pockets on the dress as shown on the pattern. It's much easier to do then after the dress is put together.

After stitching pieces of the garment, join waist and skirt. The belt is ready to be stitched in the side seams and the collar and cuffs are ready to be put on.

A trick that will save time when putting in the hem of a cotton dress is this: Turn down top of hem about one-fourth inch, press hem down, then machine-baste hem in place. Now fold hem back until one-eighth of it extends beyond crease. Set machine for eight stitches to one inch; make three or four stitches into extended hem, then one in dress, now three or four stitches in hem, and one in dress. After hem is completed, take out basting and press. Only a small stitch will show on the right side.

AUCTIONS—LEGALS

Drawings, Specifications and other Contract Documents may be examined at the office of the Architect, H. E. Everett & Associates, Commercial Building, Allentown, Pennsylvania, or at the School Superintendent's office in the High School Building, Cornwells.

A Series of Articles Introducing the New Residents of Levittown to The Community.

By Staff Reporter
LEVITTOWN, Sept. 23—If young Robert Israel 10 Lakeside Drive West had been born one week earlier than he was, he would be starting his second year of school this month. His birthday occurred February 8, five and one-half years ago, however which has made him miss the February 1 school age deadline for the second time.

Last September Robert and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Israel, lived in Hamilton Township, N. J., just outside of Trenton. Just a week short of four and one-half years old, he was ruled too young to enter kindergarten there. At their new home his birthday is a week too early to permit him to enter first grade in Tullytown Elementary School. The Tullytown school has no kindergarten, Mrs. Israel explains.

The Israels moved here September 13, just in time for their tenth wedding anniversary, September 19. Mr. Israel is a printer, employed by the National Bindery and Printing Co. in Trenton. He is an Army veteran.

Robert Israel is already interested in baseball and football and sometimes plays the games with the older boys.

LEVITTOWN, Sept. 23 — When the Levittown homes first went on sale, Dr. Marvin Rappaport and his wife came up from Philadelphia to buy one. They didn't, however; they bought two houses.

Dr. Rappaport will open a dentist's office at 2 Lakeside Drive West, October 1. He and his wife will make their home two blocks away, at 53 Locust Lane.

In his Lakeside Drive house, Dr. Rappaport will install an operating room and laboratory in the small bedroom and a consultation and business office in the large bedroom, with a waiting room in the living room.

The all-purpose room and the kitchen area he hopes to rent out to another professional man, with whom he might share the waiting room.

Dr. Rappaport was graduated in June from the Temple University School of Dentistry. He served in the Army during World War II, with the Field Artillery in Europe. Next May, Dr. Rappaport and his wife, Gertrude, expect a young addition to the family.

Neibauer Bus Co. Seeks To Operate Buses Here

Desires To Operate A Line Between Levittown and Borough of Bristol

By Staff Reporter
LEVITTOWN, Sept. 23—The Neibauer Bus Co., of Bristol, is seeking to operate a bus line between Bristol and Levittown, and has applied to the State Public Utility Commission for authority. There will be a public hearing on the proposed line and the company's application Friday, October 10, in Philadelphia in Room 201 of the Harrison Building, 15th and Market streets, at 10 a. m.

The Neibauer Co. announced this week that the proposed route would start in Bristol at Market street and Bristol Pike, following the latter street to Mill street, then Otter and Bath streets to new U. S. Route 13, to Oxford Valley road, in Tullytown, and enter Levittown at Spur Lane.

In Levittown the bus would run on the East, South, West and North Stonybrook Drives, to Sexton Lane, to Oxford Valley Road, to Pinewood Drive South, to Link Lane, and enter Tullytown on Lakeside Drive North and East. From Tullytown the bus would follow Low Lane, Fallington Road, to New U. S. Route 13, to Green Lane, to Wilson avenue, Bristol. It would return to its terminus in the village via Pond, Mulberry, Radcliffe and Market streets.

An alternate route is proposed in Bristol starting on Green Lane from Wilson avenue, to Radcliffe, and Monroe streets, to Farragut avenue, to Wilson avenue, to the starting place.

The first meeting for the fall and winter season of Lower Makefield Township Woman's Club is to take place this evening at 8:30 in Makefield grammar school.

Kenneth Abell, recreational consultant for Penna. State Planning Board, will be the speaker.

Mrs. Horace Hoffman, chairman, and her civic committee, planned the program.

A covered dish supper will be partaken of at six o'clock.

A Series of Articles Introducing the New Residents of Levittown to The Community.

By Staff Reporter
LEVITTOWN, Sept. 23—If young Robert Israel, 10 Lakeside Drive

West had been born one week earlier than he was, he would be starting his second year of school this month. His birthday occurred February 8, five and one-half years ago, however which has made him miss the February 1 school age deadline for the second time.

Last September Robert and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Israel, lived in Hamilton Township, N. J., just outside of Trenton. Just a week short of four and one-half years old, he was ruled too young to enter kindergarten there. At their new home his birthday is a week too early to permit him to enter first grade in Tullytown Elementary School. The Tullytown school has no kindergarten, Mrs. Israel explains.

The Israels moved here September 13, just in time for their tenth wedding anniversary, September 19. Mr. Israel is a printer, employed by the National Bindery and Printing Co., in Trenton. He is an Army veteran.

Robert Israel is already interested in baseball and football and sometimes plays the games with the older boys.

LEVITTOWN, Sept. 23 — When the Levittown homes first went on sale, Dr. Marvin Rappaport and his wife came up from Philadelphia to buy one. They didn't, however; they bought two houses.

Dr. Rappaport will open a dentist's office at 2 Lakeside Drive West, October 1. He and his wife will make their home two blocks away, at 53 Locust Lane.

In his Lakeside Drive house, Dr. Rappaport will install an operating room and laboratory in the small bedroom and a consultation and business office in the large bedroom, with a waiting room in the living room.

The all-purpose room and the kitchen area he hopes to rent out to another professional man, with whom he might share the waiting room.

Dr. Rappaport was graduated in June from the Temple University School of Dentistry. He served in the Army during World War II, with the Field Artillery in Europe. Next May, Dr. Rappaport and his wife, Gertrude, expect a young addition to the family.

Sew On Articles For Guild; Enjoy Box Luncheon

BUCKINGHAM, Sept. 23 — At the first meeting for the fall of Buckingham Women's Club, members sewed on articles for the Needlework Guild of America, last week. Mrs. William Large and Mrs. David Wray were co-hostesses at the former's home. A box luncheon was partaken of.

It was stated that the group will have 120 articles for the guild. Contributions were received from club members for birthday gifts for two French orphans who were sponsored by the club two years ago.

Mrs. Leon Scott, vice-president, who presided at the business meeting, said that the club is proud to have three of its members serve in the County Federation of Women's Clubs. They are: Mrs. Samuel L. Smith, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. Lewis Fritz, co-chairman of conservation and gardens; and Mrs. Walter Robson, Jr., chairman of press and publicity.

John Cummings, curator of Bucks County Historical Society, will speak at the October meeting on "Preservation of Bucks County's Past."

litical complexion of our government."

Eisenhower told the cheering Buckeye State audience that Sen. Taft has been a leader in sound government, saying:

"No one in Congress has stood more firmly for the principles of representative government and high ideals of public service."

Eisenhower underlined in his foreign speech:

"Peace is the reward for those who guided by confidence in themselves and faith in God will develop their utmost in material and moral strength and devote that strength to this righteous cause of freedom."

He drew cheers when he added: "If we do this, we will save America from becoming a beleaguered outpost of a weary democratic world. We will proclaim America to be what she must ever be—the headquarters of freedom."

Earlier in the day Ike held a press conference on the train and told newsmen the substance of his telephone conversation with Sen. Nixon.

He said that Nixon had informed him that he was going to present his full case before the public by television and radio.

Eisenhower said he commended Nixon for this attitude and said: "I told him I thought he should do so and that he should present everything that should be considered by the most meticulous person even as a collateral piece of information, to get the full works on the record instantly."

It was learned on good authority that the General will decide after hearing his GOP running mate's explanation of his expense account whether to keep Senator Nixon on the GOP ticket.

He told the newsmen that he had no plan of having any "staff meeting" until all of the facts were in. It was the General's viewpoint that Sen. Nixon is a grown man, who should know what he is doing and therefore he should not "nag" his Vice - Presidential running mate about the matter.

Although the technicalities of who would have the final say in judging Sen. Nixon's case have not been decided, it is known that Ike as titular head of the GOP Party expects that he would make the real decision on whether the California Senator stays on the ticket.

Bucks County cannot be applied to an industrial plant such as the steel company.

"Any decline in school standards in the area" said Cadwallader would be traceable to the assessment system in present use, if it were to be continued on through the years and no attempt was made to get qualified technical assistance in the preparation of assessment figures.

The decision of the school board to appeal the assessment of the steel works came several weeks ago after the school board had met with officials of the steel company and had tried to come to an agreement with the company on the use of expert industrial appraisers to set a valuation for assessment purposes on the plant.

The school board felt that the present approximately 14-million dollar assessment of the steel company represented too low a figure.

The school board requested county tax officials to delay the public hearing on the matter beyond the Sept. 17, date that had been set by the board for the hearing. This the tax authorities refused to do.

At the public hearing the school board requested the Board of Assessment and Revision to delay the hearing until such time as an appraisal of the plant could be made by expert industrial appraisers. An expert at the hearing testified that 60 to 90 days would be required in order to make an appraisal of the plant which could be used as a satisfactory basis of assessment.

The County Commissioners who compose the Board of Assessment and Revision heard the appeals presented by the school board and the steel company and granted the school board one week from the Sept. 17, date in order to present figures justifying their feeling that the assessment was too low.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Belching can be stopped at will. The habit is often begun when the patient feels sensations resembling gas pains and, hoping for relief, teaches himself to swallow and expel air. According to Cosmopolitan magazine, a patient can usually cure himself of belching if he understands that it's impossible to belch without preliminary swallowing. And this is difficult to do if the mouth is held open.

DADDY AND HIS LITTLE GIRL

The following points a valuable lesson. It is worth reading . . . and keeping. It is regretted that the author is unknown; otherwise he would be given credit.

Today my daughter, who is 7 years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes. Her cocker spaniel, whose name is Coot, sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved good-bye and started off to the hall of learning.

Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her, the girl with yellow curls, and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher, who has eyes in the back of her head, and the trees in the school yard, and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things—tremendously vital, unimportant things, and then we studied spelling, reading, arithmetic—and then to bed.

She's back there now—back in the nursery sound asleep, with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's her doll) cuddled in her right arm. You guy's won't hurt her, would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut or her head gets bumped, I can fix it—but when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she's in your hands.

She's a nice kid. She can run like a deer and dart about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time; I have to work to pay for her clothes and her education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive slowly past the schools and intersections—and please remember that children run from behind parked cars.

Please don't run over my little girl.

litical complexion of our government."

Eisenhower told the cheering Buckeye State audience that Sen. Taft has been a leader in sound government, saying:

"No one in Congress has stood more firmly for the principles of representative government and high ideals of public service."

Eisenhower underlined in his foreign speech:

"Peace is the reward for those who guided by confidence in themselves and faith in God will develop their utmost in material and moral strength and devote that strength to this righteous cause of freedom."

He drew cheers when he added: "If we do this, we will save America from becoming a beleaguered outpost of a weary democratic world. We will proclaim America to be what she must ever be—the headquarters of freedom."

Earlier in the day Ike held a press conference on the train and told newsmen the substance of his telephone conversation with Sen. Nixon.

He said that Nixon had informed him that he was going to present his full case before the public by television and radio.

Eisenhower said he commended Nixon for this attitude and said:

"I told him I thought he should do so and that he should present everything that should be considered by the most meticulous person even as a collateral piece of information, to get the full works on the record instantly."

It was learned on good authority that the General will decide after hearing his GOP running mate's explanation of his expense account whether to keep Senator Nixon on the GOP ticket.

He told the newsmen that he had no plan of having any "staff meeting" until all of the facts were in. It was the General's viewpoint that Sen. Nixon is a grown man, who should know what he is doing and therefore he should not "nag" his Vice - Presidential running mate about the matter.

Although the technicalities of who would have the final say in judging Sen. Nixon's case have not been decided, it is known that Ike as titular head of the GOP Party expects that he would make the real decision on whether the California Senator stays on the ticket.

Bucks County cannot be applied to an industrial plant such as the steel company.

"Any decline in school standards in the area" said Cadwallader would be traceable to the assessment system in present use, if it were to be continued on through the years and no attempt was made to get qualified technical assistance in the preparation of assessment figures.

The decision of the school board to appeal the assessment of the steel works came several weeks ago after the school board had met with officials of the steel company and had tried to come to an agreement with the company on the use of expert industrial appraisers to set a valuation for assessment purposes on the plant.

The school board felt that the present approximately 14-million dollar assessment of the steel company represented too low a figure.

The school board requested county tax officials to delay the public hearing on the matter beyond the Sept. 17, date that had been set by the board for the hearing. This the tax authorities refused to do.

At the public hearing the school board requested the Board of Assessment and Revision to delay the hearing until such time as an appraisal of the plant could be made by expert industrial appraisers. An expert at the hearing testified that 60 to 90 days would be required in order to make an appraisal of the plant which could be used as a satisfactory basis of assessment.

The County Commissioners who compose the Board of Assessment and Revision heard the appeals presented by the school board and the steel company and granted the school board one week from the Sept. 17, date in order to present figures justifying their feeling that the assessment was too low.

DADDY AND HIS LITTLE GIRL

The following points a valuable lesson. It is worth reading . . . and keeping. It is regretted that the author is unknown; otherwise he would be given credit.

Today my daughter, who is 7 years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes. Her cocker spaniel, whose name is Coot, sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved good-bye and started off to the hall of learning.

Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her, the girl with yellow curls, and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher, who has eyes in the back of her head, and the trees in the school yard and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things—tremendously vital, unimportant things, and then we studied spelling, reading, arithmetic—and then to bed.

She's back there now—back in the nursery sound asleep, with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's her doll) cuddled in her right arm.

You guy's won't hurt her, would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut or her head gets bumped, I can fix it—but when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she's in your hands.

She's a nice kid. She can run like a deer and dart about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time; I have to work to pay for her clothes and her education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive slowly past the schools and intersections—and please remember that children run from behind parked cars.

Please don't run over my little girl.

Bristol Parent-Teachers Association, in high school cafeteria, 6:30 p. m.
